

Amanda Miller has been an educator for ten years, always in Alternative Education settings. A certified English teacher, she also has a Special Education Endorsement in the area of Specific Learning Disabilities. Amanda leverages both skill sets in her current position at Bay Arenac Community High School in Bay County. She feels that alternative education provides additional opportunities for struggling students to find the success they wouldn't otherwise realize for any number of reasons. Amanda is in her first term as a board member for the Michigan Alternative

Education Organization and feels strongly about making a positive contribution toward the continued vitality of Alternative Education in the State of Michigan.
